Who am I?

I've long, soft ears, a pointy snout,
large feet and digging claws.
I dig for insects, seeds and bulbs
then crunch them with my jaws.
I dig my burrow in the ground –
it spirals and it's deep.
And when it's hot out in the sun,
you'll find me there, asleep.

I am a type of dragon
but I do not breathe out flames.
My formal name's Pogona,
but I've lots of other names.
I love to lie out in the sun
but if you come too near,
I'll either make my beard puff out,
or run and disappear.

Who am I?

I have two legs, two wings, a beak
and lots of feathers too.
It's obvious that I'm a bird –
that can't be news to you.
The question is, what type of bird?
Here's what you need to know:
I only eat the little fruits
that grow on mistletoe.

I am _____

I'm small, although my ears are large,
and I have long hind feet.
I search for insects, seeds and fruits –
they're what I like to eat.
By day, I sleep beneath the ground.
At night, I come up top,
and that is when I look for food.
You'll see me hop, hop, hop.
